The Risala Abdullah ibn Abi Zayd al-Qayrawani

The Risala of Ibn Abi Zayd is one of the earliest written manuals on Islam. It was initially written by the author after he was requested to write a manual for children to learn the rules of Islam based on the Quran and Prophetic Sayings (Hadith). It covers all of what a Muslim needs to know in terms of the science of faith (aqida) as well as jurisprudence (fiqh). Due to the soundness of the rulings mentioned in the text as well as its style of writing, it has gained wide acceptance across many Muslim communities, especially in Africa where the author was from. There are a number of commentaries (shuruh) and marginal notes (hashiya) on this text. Many people who have studied or taught this text have also experienced that this is one of the most blessed texts from the Muslim tradition of scholarship.
